BISHOP HENRY WHITE WARREN

Born January 4, 1831, at Williamsburg, Mass., died July 23, 1912, at University Park, Colo.

As a fitting close of his Episcopal career and of his life, we present here his farewell address to the General Conference at Minneapolis, on May 22, 1912.

"Brethren, I desire the indulgence of this Conference for a brief personal word. If I had been present when the vote on the retiring of three bishops was announced, I should have spoken then. I desire a word now.

"In 1880, thirty-two years ago, the General Conference conferred upon me the greatest honor that can be conferred on any mortal man, to be the vicegerent and ambassador of the King of kings for all the earth. No man has served effectively in this office longer than myself. Only five men have come up to this limit of thirty-two years, and some of them, like Bishop Asbury, were in pain and grief extreme during the latter part of the time.

"It has been an era of unlimited joy. When I look at my successor in the seniority, Bishop Cranston, I remember with a holy feeling that thirteen men have stood between us, and now we are together.

"In the exercise of this office I have been about the world—to South America twice, China and Japan twice, Korea, the Philippines, India, Europe, North Africa, Mexico and Porto Rico—a glorious embassy to the world at large. I have brought back from my observation in the heathen world the most clear and vivid feeling that the gospel in the heathen world is the power of God, and it affects human hearts according to the thought and mind of the blessed Spirit.

"When I was elected we chose our residences. I chose mine in Atlanta. I count those years among the most valuable years of my life. By the gracious benevolence of Brother Gammon I was permitted to be associated with the founding and endowing of that great School of Theology. Then I chose my residence on the frontier and by the marvelous liberality of my wife and children I was enabled to be associated with the founding and endowing of the second great theological school of the five in our church. For such a privilege I devoutly thank God.

"I earnestly desire for the Church an intense spiritual life. The machinery is good, but dead. The power of God in the soul is the life of the world.

"Concerning this matter of retiring, my wife and family agreed before we came that we would follow the custom of my life, with no word whatever to say in regard to the designation of my work. I have appointed, sometimes to difficult fields, 35,000 men, and they have gone to their work with a loyalty that is sublime, a devotion, courage, and cheer that are born of God. I belong to that class of men, and accept the situation."

The address was spoken with great dignity of manner and impressive voice, and at its close the Bishop received a personal ovation such as is rarely paralleled in the General Conference.

HENRY WHITE WARREN

By James Henry Potts, D.D., Editor Michigan Christian Advocate

A man of kingly mold was Henry White;
Strong-framed, close-knit, clear-visioned, bright.
His heart was stayed on God, on truth and worth;
His work a ministry as wide as earth.

And where he moved light beamed, love stirred, guilt cowered;
His soul was by the Soul of souls empowered;
He spake, and listeners to the word were thrilled;
He taught, and wisdom on his lips distilled.

A scientist was he; a master mind,
With gifts the roots of fact and thought to find;
Deep down within the earth he saw the light,
And e'en star-depths were open to his sight.

He lived, a leader long in knightly clan;
He grew, as leader and as manly man;
Age was his friend; youth stayed within his heart;
He brought to perfect use the living art.

And millions loved this royal Henry White,
Who stood for progress, verity and right;
Nor king, nor prince, nor emperor ever shone
With truer luster from a monarch's throne.
